Russians Tried to Arrest Gleichen Girl

Three Men Arrested in Calgary and Charged With Intimidation—One Impersonated a Calgary Detective

They Endeavored to Get Extortionate Interest From a Very Good, Hardworking Girl

Last Saturday three well dressed Russians were noticed on the streets of Gleichen, and someone made a guess that they were interpreters in a case on at the R. N. W. M. P. barracks that afternoon, and soon they were pointed out as such, although it was remarked that it was strange that they should imbibe so freely. Chief Roberts knew better, and was rather surprised to see two of them appear quite startled when he entered the section house to get a book required in court. He also was amazed when the third man spoke to him and said he had been a "plain clothes man" in Calgary. The trio were given little attention until the Calgary Albertan on Monday contained the following:

"What appears to be a particularly high-handed piece of illegal procedure is revealed in the arrest at the C. P. R. station on Saturday night, of John Ushove and Samuel Lukic, two Russians residing at 106 First avenue east, who are held at police headquarters on the charge of assaulting Mary Haluick, aged 13, also a Russian. The assault arises out of the alleged illegal arrest of the girl at Gleichen by the prisoners and another Russian, who told her he was a brother of Detective E. P. Schoeppe, of the city police. The false sleuth jumped off the train from Gleichen, which carried himself, the girl and the two prisoners as it steamed into the station on Saturday night an hour late. The girl and her two captors were apprehended by Detectives Burroughs and Schoeppe who had received advance information of their arrival and waited at the train. The men were locked up and the woman was handed over to the Social Service home.

"According to the story told Detective Schoeppe by the girl, she borrowed 44 rubles [$33] from one of the men in Russia. He demanded that she return twice that amount to him after he had located her in Gleichen, to which place she had moved from Calgary, and when she would not do so the fake arrest took place. The girl doubted the authority of the detective, and the police were informed of the action of the men after they had left Gleichen with the girl. A brutal part of the proceedings is the alleged statement of one of the men to the girl that she would have to live with him for two months if she did not pay over the money asked for."

The two men appeared in police court Monday morning and were remanded until yesterday. Monday afternoon the fake detective was captured by the real one and gave his name as Pete Smith. All three are charged with intimidation, and the latter with impersonating an officer of the law.

Mary Haluick is known to quite a few people in Gleichen, having been employed in two private families here, and although she could speak scarcely a word of English, her mistresses state that she is a good hardworking girl.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

A special meeting of the town council was held Monday afternoon with Mayor Bray in the chair and Councillors McKay, Leggatt, Gaudaur, Yates and Service present.

After discussing the by-law in respect to the nuisance grounds, Ald. Leggatt and McKay moved the following amendment to it, which was unanimously carried:

"That no person or persons shall draw or cart any dead animal to the nuisance ground unless he bury the said dead animal by digging a hole in the ground at least five feet deep and placing the said animal therein and covering it up with the same depth of soil."

Harvest Gossip

It is expected that the new farmers' elevator will be ready for business by the end of this week.

S. J. Hedges states that the crop of oats he put in for Emil Griesbach has yielded 182 bushels to the acre. This is the best heard of yet.

J. J. Frater arrived Monday from David City, Nebraska, to inspect his bountiful crops on his farm north of town, of which T. Anderson is in charge and Wm. Jones has worked and produced.

W. F. Durston, of Queenstown, has accepted the position of Manager of the farmer's elevator, offered him by the association, and will commence his duties at once. Mr. Durston has proven a successful farmer, and being well known, should prove a good man for the position.

At Cluny, John Clark Jr. had 90 acres of Marquis wheat which yielded 43 bushels to the acre and weighed 67 pounds to the bushel. Mr. Clark said that a field of Stanley adjoining made little better than chicken feed.

Thursday night there was a very heavy wind storm accompanied by rain and later with a light fall of the beautiful, which, however, disappeared early the next morning. Since, the weather has been bright with warm days and cold nights.

The lull in threshing caused by the inclement weather for two days the past week was occupied by many of the farmers in hauling grain to town.

S. J. Hedges has on display at this office the biggest potatoes we have seen this season, which he says are quite the common size grown on his farm this year and that he has between 400 and 500 bushels to dispose of. One of these spuds turned the scales at 24 pounds and another at 24 pounds. They can be seen in the CALL window and we invite anyone who can beat them to bring them along.

Mr. and Mrs. Sundquist, of Toulon, Illinois, were in Gleichen a short while last week with a former friend. They were on a honeymoon tour through the Dakotas, Montana and coast states, and returning through Canada. "The harvest is a great sight," said Mr. Sundquist, who is a substantial business man, "and the finest appearing land we have seen is this between Calgary and Gleichen."

A fifteen acre field of wheat on the reserve threshed Tuesday went

Grain Marketed So Far 164,244

During the past week there has not been quite as much grain hauled to the elevators and loading platform as in the previous owing to the bad weather on Friday and Saturday. Yet there were three more carloads shipped, the total number for last week being 21 cars of wheat. It is expected the coming week will prove a record one so far this season provided the present fine weather continues as threshing is about completed. The grade of grain coming in so far is mostly No. 1, and the poorest wheat brought in so far this year graded No. 3. The market continues to drop and as is usually the case likely will until the major portion of the grain is in the hands of the buyers. During the week wheat has dropped 2 cents, oats 2, barley 1 cent and flax 2 cents.

Authorities state that oats is generally a number one grade, but the quantity is fully 25 per cent less than estimated early in the season. Elevator men, however, are of the impression that there is plenty of oats in the country and that the shortage in yield is not likely to effect the price materially.

Below is the total number of bushels marketed this week, also for the season and the total amount shipped.

RECEIVED—	Past week:	Total:
Wheat.....	31,994.....	107,599
Oats.....	4,719.....	53,667
Barley.....	1,400
Flax.....	1,078.....	1,578
Total.....	37,791.....	164,244
SHIPPED—
Total.....	135,000

45½ bus. per acre, elevator weight, and a field of oats went 115 bus. This grain is No. 1—in fact nearly all the grain grown on the reserve this year is grading No. 1.

It is pleasing to learn that the officer in charge of the Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture makes the complaint that he is getting no work from Gleichen, and in fact very little from any part of Southern Alberta. One has not far to go for the reason, which is simply that nearly all the grain is No. 1. The farmers consider that there is no doubt of their seed qualities, and therefore few request the test of the officer.

Threshing will be practically all completed by the end of this week throughout this district.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Farr in the loss of their infant daughter at Gleichen on Sunday, September 29. They desire to most sincerely thank their friends and particularly Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Winger for their many kindnesses.

The third annual convention of the South Central Alberta Teachers' Association is to be held in Calgary Thursday and Friday, October 16th and 17th. A copy of the program has reached this office and the CALL is requested to advise the teachers that they can secure special rates by buying a one-way ticket and obtaining a standard certificate from the local agent. Programs may be obtained on application to the secretary.

That Gleichen is a live town is easy to see. More business is done here now at this time of the year than ever before. We are not desirous of having outsiders think we are suffering from a boom. We are enjoying an increase of business and prosperity. Our business-men are busy early and late, people and teams are bringing in produce and goods to exchange for goods, and our merchants are selling goods at "live and let live prices," and the people are not slow to take advantage of this opportunity and get the bargains as advertised.

There was an interesting meeting of the Gleichen Farmers' Union last Saturday afternoon at which a good amount of business was transacted in a short session.

E. W. Campbell, W. F. Beach and E. Hunt of Hannah spent a few days in town this week.

Rev. Mr. Rennie, of Calgary, spent a day in Gleichen this week visiting his friends.

Hundreds of prairie chickens have been killed around Gleichen during the past week.

The Presbyterian congregations of Gleichen and Strathmore have extended a call to Rev. Boyd, of Wapella, Saskatchewan.

It would seem that Ed Urch is not satisfied with making a fortune raising black foxes in P. E. I., for he now has an eight-pound boy. Congratulations from all old Gleichen friends.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday—Wednesday—at the residence of Alderman and Mrs. Service when their daughter Marion was married to Mr. Charles Reginald Ward of Cranbrook, B.C., by Canon Stocken. The ceremony took place too late for further particulars in this issue.

A. Whiteley and family left yesterday for his home in England, having received a cable of his father's serious illness and stating that he could not live for very long. Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley will be much missed in Gleichen. Mr. Whiteley has carried on a good business as plumber and also as music teacher.

Antelope will be protected until October 1, 1917, and the capture of foxes will be prohibited between April 1 and November 1 of each year if a bill submitted by Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture, to amend the game act of Alberta, is adopted by the provincial legislature. There is no opposition to the amendments.

The set 14-22-22, which was sold last Saturday afternoon by public auction was bought by Thos. Henderson at the remarkably low figure of $2000, or less than $18 an acre. The farm is only 4½ miles from Gleichen, and has some improvements. The incident only goes to show how handy it is to have ready cash when money is "tight."

U. S. OFFICIAL VISITS GLEICHEN

F. H. Newell, Chief of the Reclamation Service of the United States, was a visitor to Gleichen for several days last week as a guest of F. C. Crandall, who is an old acquaintance of his. Mr. Newell was accompanied by R. S. Stockton of the C. P. R. Irrigation Department. While here they made extensive trips through the irrigation block, and before leaving, Mr. Newell expressed himself as greatly pleased with all he had seen and remarked on the many excellent crops of the district. Mr. Newell is in charge of the work of reclaiming by irrigation all the desert lands of the United States, under whose direction eighty million dollars are to be spent.

Wedding Bells

McCRIMMON-MEDFERN

Cupid's gilded shafts have once more gone true, and two hearts now beat as one. The contracting parties in this happy event were Mary A. McCrimmon, of Angus, Ontario, and R. L. Medfern, of Claresholm, who will be remembered as the popular proprietor of the Royal barber shop in Gleichen up to this spring. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Rennie, at the Bankview Presbyterian manse, on Monday evening of this week. At Claresholm, the groom has a home all prepared for his bride, and it is there they will make their home.

The bride is a sister of J. L. McCrimmon of this place. She is a young lady of many graces of mind and person, and will prove truly a helpmate and companion to the husband she has honored with her hand.

Miss Davis has opened a dress-making parlor, Crowfoot St., entry via the Telephone Exchange stairway, where she is prepared to meet all the ladies of Gleichen. Miss Davis has also taken over the agency for the Spirella model from Miss Convey and will be pleased to meet all former customers and others interested.

NAMAKA NEWSLETS

Threshing was delayed on Saturday and Monday owing to a slight fall of snow, but is now going on merrily again.

The Hollister outfit is busy at George Peterson's with good results. It is reported that from 3 acres of Marquis wheat he obtained 183 bushels—61 bushels to the acre.

George Lane is a visitor to Namaka, and is enjoying the good shooting.

There is to be a dance in the Harwood school house on Friday night, October 10th, when a good time is anticipated.

A number of goose hunters from Calgary are stopping with Mr. Barker at the Namaka House, and are meeting with good success.

Our elevators are doing a good business.

Professor Was Mistaken

Once upon a time and not so very long ago, and within the memory of the youngest of some of us, some government or association sent a Toronto University professor to Western Canada to investigate conditions in general. He came, he saw, he investigated, he reported. He gave as his opinion that this was no great wheat growing country. It would never produce 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. And that all happened just about ten years ago.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has just published its estimate of the crop for 1913. As a rule that estimate is very sane and conservative. It usually is fairly correct. It estimates that the crop in the western provinces this year is over 500,000,000, and of that volume 198,000,000 is wheat. The Alberta refers to this matter just to show that even the professors and other authorities sometimes go wrong—Calgary Albertan.

A number of antelope hunters have returned unsuccessful.

But he got no further, for with a scream of rage Billy Man hurled himself upon him and Sir John had but time to turn before the knife flashed and fell and buried itself in his side. He fell with a dreadful cry; and in a moment all the house seemed to start to life with clamor and with bustle and with lights here and there and with figures starting from opening doors.

For a moment Billy Man lingered and stooping he snatched the knife from his wounded victim. For a moment he even seemed as if in his lust of cruelty he meant to strike again, but realizing that the time was getting short he flung the knife on the ground and rushed down the stairs to the hall where Green and Crookes had already run from the library. At once they rushed to the front door and tore it open and fled, and were out of the house before Billy Man had reached the foot of the stairs.

Above Lady Martin and Dora, running in panic from their rooms, were the first into the passage where Sir John had been struck down.

Oh, they have murdered him, screamed Lady Martin falling on her knees by his side. Oh, who has done it?

Oh, you villain, you, she cried and flung the knife, and as it was ordained it flew straight and true and the point sank home in Billy Man's shoulder.

Screaming with rage and pain he turned and shook his fist at her and cursed her by her name with the light from the lamp outside full upon his face; and then as he turned and rushed away, Dora fell forward on her face in a dead swoon.

CHAPTER XIX Wilton Mayne's Wound

When on the following morning Green first met Joan she greeted him with a look so keen and piercing that he at once became extremely uncomfortable. He had grown somehow better than she quite realized, and now he understood immediately that she had something serious to say to him.

Where were you last night? she asked him quietly.

In bed, of course, he muttered sulkily, shifting uneasily from one foot to the other.

Then why did you not answer me when I called you? she continued.

You called me? he muttered, taken aback; why, what for? he asked with increasing uneasiness.

My mother was very ill and I wished you to go for a doctor, she answered. In the end I had to ask a passing policeman to send me one.

A policeman—a slip, Green ejaculated, staring at her open mouthed; surely—you never did?

Why not? she asked with steady eyes that marked his obvious discomposure. Where were you last night?

She said again. From the table beside her she lifted a newspaper. There is an account here, she said slowly, of a burglary at Lady Martin's, at the house where you warned me Miss Rose should not—

But with a look at her of mingled anger and doubt and fear he turned sharp on his heel and hurried away, and Joan's face was more pale, more sad than ever, as she slowly put back her newspaper upon the table.

There can be no doubt, she said aloud; I must tell Edward—he must know—that will be the end of all, she said, pressing her lips hard together to hold in her pain.

This morning she felt very weary, very sad, weighed down and confused by troubles that were too great for her to bear. Her sleepless night by the bedside of her mother, whose sudden

DREADFUL ITCHING AND BURNING

White Blisters Spread All Over Head, Scratched Until Mass of Sores, Hard Crusts Left Raw Flesh, Had to Cut Hair Away, Healed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment, Hair Growing Thick.

130 Romaine St., Peterboro, Ontario.

"My little girl's head was in a terrible state. It started with little white blisters, which would break until it spread all over her head.

The burning and itching were dreadful, especially at night when she would scratch it until it was one mass of sores all over her head and the pillow would be covered with blood. She could get no rest at all with the pain. She could beg me to put anything on to cool the burning and itching. Hard crusts would form on her head which when she scratched it would leave the raw flesh underneath, and her hair came off with it or would be in such a dreadful state that I would be obliged to cut the hair away.

"I tried several remedies but none of them seemed to do any good. I then put her hair quite close, washed it with Cuticura Soap and bandaged it using Cuticura Ointment. It is now quite healed without a mark on the skin. Her hair is growing long and thick again." (Signed) Mrs. M. Saunders, Feb. 13, 1912.

attack of pain and weakness had been very alarming, had greatly exhausted her, and now there was this dreadful night of this burglary and the attack of Sir John Martin, which she could not help regarding as the climax and proof of all her fears. For a long time she sat in silence, from which she only roused herself when Dora arrived, an unconventionally early visitor.

Joan had seen her coming down the street and she admitted her herself, greatly relieved to see her, for there were questions she much wished to ask that she felt only Dora could answer. Joan was in an alert and suspicious mood this morning, and she took her visitor to a little room at the head of the stairs where they sat with the door wide open so that no one could approach them without being at once noticed.

I have seen the papers this morning, Joan began abruptly; there is something I wished to ask you.

No, no, Dora exclaimed quickly, I have been answering questions all morning. No, it was for something else I came here—

Answer my question first, Joan interrupted with a certain air of authority; tell me this—was there any one of these burglars you saw last night whom it seemed you knew?

But Dora did not answer. She fell back into her chair as if she had been struck some fatal blow and her face grew grey and old. With a kind of grim and resolute despair, Joan waited for an answer, and at last Dora stammered out:

How dare—wicked—you have no right—how dare you?

Was there, then, one of these burglars you saw last night, Joan repeated in her level and expressionless tones, whom it seemed to you you knew?

Dora flung up both her hands. She would have fled if the power had remained to her, and the gesture she made was of such terrible despair that it became at once an affirmation.

Oh, why—why—why do you ask? she wailed in horror.

Why do you not answer, rather? returned Joan with equal distress but with greater self-control.

But Dora only wrung her hands and Joan watched her steadily.

You must tell me, she said; you must tell me—or I shall die.

But you—you know? Dora stammered out; you know—or you would not ask?

Tell me, said Joan once more, and Dora burst out wildly:

But it was not he, I tell you, it was not he; how could it be? It is impossible, oh, I knew all the time it could not be, and he was different—quite different. It was like some awful, evil copy, but it was not—it was not Wilton.

Wilton? cried Joan and sprang to her feet, amazed beyond expression, for this was the last name she had expected to hear. Girl, was it not my father? she asked in terrible tones.

But now it was Dora's turn to look bewildered and amazed.

I don't understand you; your father, she murmured; why Joan, why, what a strange thing to say.

But Wilton—Mr. Mayne? Joan repeated, still astonished.

It was a man, Dora said fearfully, a man so strangely, dreadfully, so terribly like him.

To Joan the relief was so great that she really laughed. Perhaps then she might still hope; just possibly her suspicions were unfounded; just possibly her father had had no concern in this burglary the paper was so full of. As for what Dora hinted, that seemed to her too absurd.

Why, Dora, she cried, what do you mean? Mr. Mayne? Wilton Mayne, the poet? Oh, Dora, what can you mean?

Dora, cheered by Joan's tone of absolute incredulity and astonishment, smiled and whispered together.

It was such a horrible likeness, she said, it made me miserable; it was so like him and yet so unlike him, too. It was like a picture of him with all the good taken out and evil and badness put in instead. Then when you asked me, that terrified me, she said simply.

Well, said Joan decidedly, you must not trouble your head with such ideas.

But you, Dora asked in her turn, you—what did you mean, Joan, when you said that about your father?

Ah, but I had reason, Joan answered with a rush of passion; he is bad, he is a bad man—There are wicked, wicked things, I am sure he is concerned in. I would have left him long ago but for mother. I would this instant, only mother is so ill, and when I read about this burglary I feared that he might perhaps have been concerned in it.

But your father—a burglar, Dora exclaimed, still amazed; oh, Joan, but that is too horrible.

Life is too horrible, Joan answered, and yet it seems we have to live it. With a sudden outburst of her feelings, she went on to tell all those things, both small and great, that added together had brought her slowly to believe that her father lived a criminal life. Her momentary hopes had died again, and she had again become convinced of her father's guilt. Now that she had spoken out her secret fears it seemed to her that it was no longer possible for doubt to exist; it was as though the truth had been born in her mind at last, born after long months of travail and doubt and fear.

Yes, it was he, she cried, and he and his friends who planned last night's robbery. I am as certain of it as if they had told me all their plans; and Mr. Thorpe has asked me to marry him, and what can I do, oh, what can I do when mother is so ill? She beat her hands together with a soft despairing gesture. Oh, why, she wailed; oh, why has mother fallen so ill just at this moment?

Dora, forgetting the terrors she had cherished in the greater terrors, it seemed her friend was certain of, did her best to comfort her and to persuade her that perhaps she was mistaken, was perhaps making things out worse than they were. But Joan only shook her head, for now that she had fairly faced the facts, weighed them and understood them, her conviction was not lightly to be shaken.

They were still talking when Mrs. Durand rang the little hand bell Joan had given her to use when she needed anything. The two girls went in at once to her room. She was plainly very weak and ill, but she seemed pleased to see Dora, and held out a feeble hand to her.

How kind of you to come, she murmured, but why have you been crying so? Is it because of the burglary at your house?

Joan started, for she had not known that her mother had heard anything about the burglary, and Dora answered with some haste.

Lobster Palace Etiquette

A Chicagoan unacquainted with the ways of New York entered one of Broadway's lobster palaces and ordered vichy with ice and soft-shelled crabs with tartar sauce. In accord with the settled customs of such places, he was not promptly served. To his expostulation it was explained that the vichy was cold enough without ice and that soft-shelled crabs take no tartar sauce in good society. Instead of accepting this with a complacent smile, the rash man insisted on his order, and as a result had some unpleasantness and a fight where he should have had nothing but a long, wait, bad service and a big bill.

The incident illustrates western ignorance of the aims and ends of the palatial taverns in this city. Such places do not call themselves palaces without a sense of royal pride. They are not open for the gratification of guests, but the edification of the innkeeper and his help. The proprietor is above a capitalist of industry. The chef is a high functionary. The head waiter is a haughty lord. The waiter in ordinary is by no means a subordinate. The wayfaring man that enters does so at the risk of something more than his digestion and his private fortune. If he offends the customs of the palace by insistent requests for compliance with his orders, he is likely to lose his patience and his dinner as well.

Apple Dealers in Western Canada
The success of apple growing as an industry depends to a great extent on the securing of a good market. It is no uncommon occurrence almost every fall for great quantities of apples to lie about under the trees to rot or to be fed to logs because no good market is accessible. While the fruit is thus going to waste there are thousands of householders more especially in the prairie provinces that are longing for fresh fruit of a sort that can be stored and drawn upon during the winter months. The difficulty of the one class is to reach buyers for the fruit and the other to find a supply at a moderate price. To bridge the gulf that separates these two classes, and thereby do both an invalid service, the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner has issued a list of the wholesale and retail apple dealers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and sections of New Ontario whose addresses were available. These which number about 275 dealers and firms with few exceptions are said to be in a position to buy at least one carload of fruit. This information is given in Circular No. 3, of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, copies of which may be secured free from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

Taking Tonics, and Built up on Right Food

The mistake is frequently made of trying to build up a worn-out nervous system on so-called tonics—drugs.

New material from which to rebuild wasted nerve cells, is what should be supplied and this can be obtained only from proper food.

"Two years ago I found myself on the verge of a complete nervous collapse, due to overwork and tired, and to illness of the family," writes a young mother.

"My friends became alarmed because I grew pale and thin and could not sleep nights. I took various tonics prescribed by physicians, but their effects wore off shortly after I stopped taking them. My food did not seem to nourish me and I gained no flesh nor blood.

Reading of Grape Nuts, determined to stop the tonic and see what a change of diet would do. I ate Grape Nuts four times a day with cream and drank milk also. Went to bed early after eating a dish of Grape Nuts before retiring.

"In about two weeks I was sleeping soundly. In a short time gained 20 lbs. in weight and felt like a different woman. My little daughter whom I was obliged to keep out of school last spring on account of chronic catarrh, has changed from a thin, pale nervous child to a rosy, healthy girl and has gone back to school this fall.

"Grape Nuts and fresh air were the only agents used to accomplish the happy results."

Robert Henri, the artist, was talking at the annual exhibition of the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts about certain old masters. Take for instance, he said, 'Morland.' The illustrious and indefatigable Morland painted in the course of forty years 4,000 pictures. And of these, Mr. Henri smiled his quiet and intelligent smile. Of these, he continued, no less than 3,800 are extant.

A youthful Canadian, who is possessed of the romantic idea of going to sea, is meeting with much parental opposition.

The sailor never amounts to anything, my boy, urged his prosaic father. He works hard, has few holidays and never achieves great success.

That's where you're mistaken, exclaimed young Canada, triumphantly. Look at King George! He started out as a sailor and now he's got to be the head of the empire.

Water at Hand in Desert Place

The phrase about making the desert blossom as the rose is rather hardworked in these days, for the old prophecy is truly coming to pass in a literal way which is very significant.

In New Mexico, for example, a certain valley is reported to be a top of an underground sea of excellent fresh water. This reservoir may be tapped without ever exhausting the supply. The water has been analyzed and found to be the purest body of water in the country, and 200 pumps already at work there, drawing from 200 to 2,000 gallons a minute, are making roses—or at any rate marvelous fruits and vegetables—grow where were before only sand and discouraged cactus. Plowing and irrigation is carried on every week in the year and in most of the gardens vegetables grow all the year round.

Mrs. Flint came for a visit to her sister's home, and her little niece Charlotte, was delighted to see her. What became of the black kitten that you had when I was here before?

Why, don't you know? asked Charlotte, much surprised.

I haven't heard a word, replied the aunt. Was he poisoned?

No, ma'am said Charlotte. Drowned?

Oh, no. Stolen?

No, indeed. Hurt in any way?

No, ma'am. Well, said Mrs. Flint, I can't guess, dear. What became of him?

He grew into a cat, said Charlotte.

Insufferable

So you brake your engagement with him?

Yes. What for?

He's a conceited thing. I simply couldn't stand him.

I never heard him brag. What makes you think him conceited?

All the time we were engaged he never once told me that he was unworthy of my love.

World's Record Made at Great Bisleigh Shoot

European shooting authorities are enthusiastic in their praise of the remarkable marksmanship of Major P. W. Richardson at the annual meet of England's National Rifle Association at Bisleigh, England.

In the London Daily Telegraph's report of the competition, July 22, this mention is made of Major Richardson's work:

"Major P. W. Richardson, the well-known marksman, who captained the last British shooting team that visited Canada and Australia, has created what is believed to be a world's record by scoring 33 consecutive bulls' eyes at 1,100 yards. They were secured, it is true, in two competitions, plus extra shots, but as they were obtained absolutely without interval the feat stands unparalleled. Improved ammunition, it must not be forgotten, played its own part in the phenomenal shooting witnessed last week in the match-rifle competitions. Major Richardson shot with American service ammunition, manufactured by the Remington Arms Union-Metallie Cartridge Company."

A Genius in Mosaics

There recently died at Ivry, a suburb of Paris, a remarkable old man named Fraissard, who, it is claimed, could have been one of the world's most famous sculptors, if he had so desired, but who, instead, lived in a quiet, unpretentious way and finished life as he began it, with very little in the way of this world's goods.

When a boy, Mr. Fraissard was apprenticed to a marble-cutter, says the London News. For 50 years he continued to execute the most beautiful works of art; mostly in mosaics. It is claimed that every piece of work he did was a masterpiece, and the two rooms in which he lived contain a wonderful collection of beautiful objects. One is a black marble table with chessboard in inlay, and some cups, glasses and bottles. So delicate is the workmanship that the saucers are transparent. Eight years were occupied in the fashioning of this piece of work.

M. Fraissard's masterpiece took him nearly three times as long. It is a black marble table. In the middle is a chessboard, on either side of which are playing cards arranged as fans. On the table are dominoes and dice, cigars and cigarettes and several coins in gold and silver. All these are, of course, inlaid. The materials in the table besides the black marble, are agate, onyx, porphyry, malchite and lapis lazuli, the tones of which are black, red, orange, blue and white. Ninety different kinds of marble were also used.

In the old man's lodgings there are dozens of mosaics, opal cups, chandeliers and inkstands, inlaid in all sorts of stones. Fifty years of overwork, however, brought on a paralytic seizure, and for two years he had been helpless. He would never part with any of his works, no matter what price was offered him.

Went Right to It

James Francis Dwyer, the Australian novelist, tells the following story about the Japanese. Dwyer began as a reporter in Melbourne.

Japan sent a warship on invitation to Australia, said he. We were to unveil a monument in a park in the interior of Melbourne. The Japanese sailors were to grace the occasion.

Not one of the Japanese had ever been on shore there before. When the morning of the unveiling came Melbourne sent a mounted escort to show the visitors the way to the park. The escort wasn't needed. At the head of the brown column marched an officer with his nose on a map, planned to a bit of board.

He never looked up, said Dwyer. Now and then he'd give an order in Japanese, and the column would wheel to the left or right. Kind friends would wave their hands at the mounted escort, marching proudly up the wrong street, and tell them they had lost the city's guests.

Two or three times that performance was repeated. Then the mounted escort gave it up in disgust. The Japanese went to the park in the interior of the city straight as a pigeon flies to a hole in the barn. Afterwards Dwyer and other reporters measured the route and discovered that the Japanese, guided only by their war map, had taken the shortest route to their destination through a strange city.

Beset by Awful Dangers

His bride, being from the Pacific coast where thunderstorms are rare and gentle, became terrified when a genuine eastern rip-roarer broke loose, and she sought safety in a closet. Presently came a scream from her place of refuge.

What's the matter? inquired her husband?

Oh, Tom, she answered, half crying, half laughing, I'm afraid to come out because of the lightning, and I'm afraid to stay in here because there's a mouse.

Have you any hot water in your house?

Have I? My dear boy, I am never out of it.

Success depends largely upon Good Health

In your race for success don't lose sight of the fact that only through good health can you attain success.

The tension you must necessarily place upon your nerves, and the sacrifice of proper exercise you have to make at times must be balanced in some way.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

is the balancing power—a vitalizing power. It acts on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, thus purifying the blood and giving strength to the nerves, indirectly aiding the liver to perform its very important work. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been successful for a generation as a tonic and body builder. Sold by medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form—trial box of "Tablets" mailed on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps.

If in failing health write Dr. R. V. Pierce's faculty at Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, New York.

WILSON'S FLY PADS

Every ten cent packet will kill more flies than $8.00 worth of any sticky fly killer. Refuse substitutes, which are most unsatisfactory.

Ideals

No matter what book we read, something within us lifts us above the book; we must press on. No masterpiece in any art is a measure of what there is in any one of us. We are forever asking the pictures that have never reached human instrument. Our eyes vaguely make out temple that have never been built. In hands lie the books that have never been written. It is thus with human spirit in the arts. It cannot long for its wings upon its own masterpiece. It rests there awhile, and then must fly. Thus all achievement is but a small part of what man strives to achieve; and thus the old always leaves the young something to do.

CURED ECZEMA LIKE MAGIC

Suffered for Years—Tried all Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 17 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. I worked like magic and proved a Godsend to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

SEASONABLE LIGHTNING ADVICE

Precautions for Safety Urged by a Lightning Rod Expert

The question of personal safety during a thunderstorm is perhaps the most interesting to the majority of people. If in a building which is isolated in the open country, or is higher than surrounding buildings in a group, avoid chimneys or other flues, open windows or draughts, especially warm currents of air, directly below a high tower or flag pole, peak or angle of the structure. Keep away from overhead wires entering a building, although these are generally protected by lightning arresters, the current is not always arrested.

If in the open, avoid trees, wire fences or poles, and if you happen to be the most prominent object in the landscape, as in an open field or on a beach, do not raise a steel rod umbrella or in fact any umbrella, as you may become a living lightning rod without an approved ground connection. If you should happen to be caught in such an open space with lightning discharges coming very close as may be determined by the lessening intervals between flash and report, it is better to lie flat on the ground and risk a soaking than to offer a possible path for a discharge. The reason for this is that the body being warm, offers a better conductor than the surrounding air, and but a few feet rise is necessary to attract lightning on flat ground.

Question as to the action of lightning in striking a building are frequently asked and are somewhat difficult to answer without going into a lengthy discussion of the various kinds of discharges and other matters of a more or less technical nature. Let us, however, take the most frequent case, that of the ordinary forked lightning, as seen at a distance which it classifies becomes the blinding flash, with the accompanying instantaneous crash, often causing disastrous results to life and property. This discharge is caused by a difference of potential between earth and cloud. The one is heavily charged with positive electricity, the other with negative, with the air between acting as an insulator. If the air is sufficient to keep apart the two currents, no discharge will take place except from one cloud to another. Now, as the storm moves on it comes closer to the earth or meets some object in its path which offers less resistance than the air—maybe a tree, pole, building, etc. The electrical pressure is so great that the slight decrease in resistance offered by such object is sufficient to cause the current to jump the intervening space and have the destructive charge. This explanation will be clearer to those who have seen the spark gap from coils used on automobiles.

Now let us assume that instead of the object before mentioned, such as a tree, pole, building, etc., we have a perfect conductor of electricity, as a steel building, steel tower or pole in electrical contact with the earth; the current passes through this into the earth silently, the pressure is relieved and in the great majority of cases there is no violent or explosive discharge.

Here is where the function of the lightning rod appears, similar to pipes tapping the tank and drawing off the water before dangerous pressure is brought to bear on the tank. A properly constructed lightning rod will, in the vast majority of cases, act in this manner by silently discharging the current from cloud to earth, thus preventing the violent discharge which we call the thunderbolt.

Small Boy and the Motor Horn

What shall be said of the inhuman motor car manufacturer who has recently succeeded in concealing the button which sounds the motor car horn in such a way that it cannot be pressed by the small boy who hovers near?

If this invention becomes universal, consider what an effect it is bound to have upon the character of this boy! And is not the American small boy the hope of the nation?

Time was when the activities of small boys went out in the direction of stealing apples and watermelons; but owing to the civilizing influence of the cities and for other reasons this source of joy—this perfectly proper moral vent to every small boy's nature—has been largely cut off.

What might have happened to him? How far in the scale of human progress this boy would naturally have deteriorated, we cannot say.

But just in the nick of time the motor car was invented, giving him a chance to sound the horn; and thus the spirit of invention—that notable fount of wickedness and daring in every boy's make up—came to its expression, and he has been saved.

Motor cars stand everywhere, and if you—oh sober minded and dignified adult—have never in passing one felt within your heart the sudden impulse to jump into it and with fiendish exultation sound the horn, then look to yourself, for there is something morally wrong with you.

We sincerely hope, therefore, that this particular inventor will hold his invention close to him, that it may be confined only to one machine among the thousands in use.

Every boy is entitled not only to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but also to sound the horn of any machine upon which he may happen to stray.

As to the Immutability of the Lair

One of the most disconcerting and truly alarming characteristics of a liar is his essential immutability. Be it his utterances with gems of rhetoric, swathe his outgivings with the bindings of a respectable purpose; scent him with the spirit of public duty; the liar remains unchanged and unchangeable.

Traffic with a liar is thus brought down to the level of an extra hazardous occupation. No quality of innocence, no devotion to high ideals, no admirable display of enterprise, no one side, cat overcoat, or obscure for more than a moment, the idiocy of the liar.

Get Those Jewels, May!
Has the count succeeded in getting into the exclusive set?
Yes, about ten thousand, I believe.

Free Indians

In proportion to the number of inhabitants there are very nearly as many pianos and automobiles in the towns of the old Cherokee nation in the present state of Oklahoma as there are in those of Vermont or Delaware. The only Indians who are in the old free, nomadic condition are about 200 Seminoles in the Florida everglades and the big cypress morass. These Indians are as independent of the white man and almost as isolated from him, as were their forefathers when Ponce de Leon and De Soto landed in their neighborhood, says the Atlantic. They are neither citizens nor wards of the United States, nor do they hold any relation to their old associates who were transferred by the government to the west side of the Mississippi two thirds of a century ago, and who became one of the five civilized tribes of the present state of Oklahoma.

Oh, Piffle!

Did you hear about Manleigh's narrow escape?
No. What happened?
It was a fire escape, and it was so narrow that the building inspector made him replace it with a wider one.

WOMEN NEED A SAFE TONIC

And There is Nothing Better Than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Toning Up the Blood

It is said that woman's work is never done, and it is a fact that whether in society or in the home her life is filled with more cares and more worries than falls to the lot of man. For this reason women are compelled to watch the growing pallor of their cheeks, the coming of wrinkles and the thinness that becomes more distressing every day. Every woman knows that ill health and worry is a fatal enemy to beauty, and that good health gives the plainest face an enduring attractiveness.

What women fail to realize is the fact that if the blood supply is kept rich and pure, the day of the coming of wrinkles, and pallor, dull eyes and sharp headaches is immeasurably postponed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are literally worth their weight in gold to growing girls and women of mature years. They fill the veins with the rich, red blood that brings brightness to the eye, the glow of health to the cheeks, and charms away the headaches and backaches that render the lives of so many women constantly miserable.

Mrs. William Jones, Crow Lake, Ont., says: "I feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. I was so badly run down that I could hardly drag myself around. I was so bloodless that I was as pale as a sheet, and you could almost see through my hands. In fact the doctor told me my blood had all turned to water. I was taking medicine constantly, but without benefit. My mother had so much faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that she bought me two boxes and urged me to take them. How thankful I am that I followed her advice. Before these were gone I began to feel better, and I continued using the Pills until I had taken five more boxes when I was again enjoying the blessing of perfect health, with a good color in my face, a good appetite, and I feel sure a new lease of life. I will always, you may be sure, be a warm friend of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are weak or ailing begin to cure yourself to-day with the rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. If you do not find the Pills at your dealer's send 50 cents for a box or $2.50 for six boxes to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will be sent you by mail, post paid.

She was drummed out. Expelled from the suffragettes? Yes; they ascertained that she was merely hating to take off weight and not through any real zeal for the cause.

The Boy Problem

The World's Work has been describing what has been done for the boy by the Scouts, the Y.M.C.A., the Salvation Army and other bodies. Always in school and elsewhere where boys congregate, we are told, there are gangs. Usually these gangs are a nuisance, very often they are a serious menace to the morals of the gang members and to the peace of the neighborhood. For usually the energy of the gang is directed against law and order. But a new time is coming, for so many people in the schools, in the Boy Scouts, and in many other activities have grasped the fundamental fact that if these gang activities are guided, most wonderful results can be achieved—results that will leave these boys far better able to handle themselves honestly and effectively in the world than were their predecessors.—Edmonton Journal.

Mrs. Ives sat thinking the matter over. Finally she said:

Why, Henry, where would they put the water?

Queenstown Items

Our two enterprising carpenters

Wm. Oeler and Gordon Stuart have been away all summer building houses and granaries for the Messrs.
Hill and son in the Buffalo Hills.
Bill Oeler says he made enough money to stay away from the grain trail this winter. He is going over to Scotland and will likely bring back a lassie with him next spring.The last number of the CALL contains the news that Wm Durston has raised some very fine sweet corn in his garden this year and presented it to the CALL man with samples of same. With all credit due Mr.
Durston the CALL need not think that he is the only Queenstown farmer who can raise corn. John Glambeck had about as fine a patch of Squaw sweet corn this year as the Alberta sun ever shone upon. For weeks the Glambeck family had sweet corn for dinner nearly seven times a week. When the corn finally became so tough it was fed to the pigs who gained nearly five pounds in weight. But sweet corn is not the only good eating raised in Glambeck's garden for besides such common trash as turnips, parsnips, cabbage, beets, kohlrabi, carrots, green kale and numerous other vegetables hardly worth mentioning.
enough citron, cucumbers, green tomatoes and squash was grown to supply all the pickles the family can use this winter.It is reported that our friend and fellow farmer Wm. Durston is to be huyer at the new Farmers Elevator in Gleichen.There is an old saying that "pigs is pigs", and furthermore pigs don't care a snap whose crop they eat as long as they get something to eat.
And so it came to pass that Austin
Brown's pigs sallied forth to feed on Billy Smith's crop to which Billy naturally objected and lassoed and fenced up the pigs. This caused hard feelings and for a while the peace of Queenstown was threatened.
At the last reports the bailiff was seen drawing towards Queenstown in an auto at rapid speed with Aus-tine occupying the back seat. It is to be sincerely hoped that the case will be settled without blood shed.Joe McCabe is considered the best story teller of Queenstown and many a fine tale Joe relates when we are awaiting our turn to cross the ferry.
They are highly relished by everybody as they relieve the monotony.It is not a very agreeable thing to haul a four-horse load of wheat from Queenstown to the river and find the ferry sunk to the bottom in the middle of the stream with an "oil pull" on top of it. But then one who has hauled grain several seasons has met with so many strange things at that ill-fated crossing that he would not be surprised if he found a two-story house on top of the ferry some fine morning.
crop on their farm eight miles north of town. Their wheat graded No. 1 and yielded about 30 bushels to the acre.The CALL would respectfully ask all those who are in arrears with their subscriptions to this paper to do their best to let us have the amount. All of the amounts are small but as there are several hundred over due they mean a lot to us. Just now we have many accounts to meet ourselves for paper ink, wages, etc., and will very much appreciate immediate attention.Church-goers heard a splendid sermon at the Presbyterian services Sunday evening, by Rev. Hamilton, formerly of Chicago, but now of Calgary.Last week there was on display at the P. C. S. meat market a wild goose that turned the scales at 12 pounds which fell to the gun of Dr.
McIntyre.Bert Woods was in town one day last week and says that a few days previous he saw two ruffed grouse, near the Bow river, which are the first he has ever heard of in these parts. He says prairie chicken are very plentiful.Emil Griesbach was in town one day last week and has become quite a Strathmore booster. "Why," said Emil, "they give three drinks of beer for a quarter up there and there is a lot of business done in Strathmore. You would be surprised to see the amount of grain produced this year between Strathmore and Griesbach post office. You will see when the C. P. R. cut-off is finished another fine big town near my place."The McArthur Bros. can farm as well as play baseball and the fans will be pleased to learn they have grown wheat this year that ran 40 bushels to the acre and graded

By the end of September the enrollment of the school had passed the hundred mark, and is steadily growing. Several are taking high school work.

Much new paraphernalia has been added to the equipment.

Principal McKay would respectfully urge parents to get their children to school on time, as there have been a great many cases of tardiness.

An Unique Exhibition

The management of the Pure Food and Fashion Show which will be held in Calgary from October 18th to 28th inclusive have closed contracts with some of the best vaudeville acts on the American stage, as well as having made arrangements with several of the leading midway attractions that will appear at the New Westminster fair.

The tuberculosis exhibit secured from the Manitoba Government, is on the way. This exhibit is accompanied by a lecturing specialist, who will give a lecture afternoons and evenings, demonstrating by moving pictures, showing sanitary homes and conditions that cause this dread disease, as well as to how to prevent and how to treat the disease. This exhibition will be a demonstration of extraordinary interest and value to the people of Alberta—the first time it ever has been shown in the Province.

The demonstration in the Pure Food display will go thoroughly into the preparation, as well as the cooking and serving of foods.

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

TRINITY IS NOT IN THE BIBLE

Pastor Russell Says the Roman Emperor Put It in the Nicene Creed, A. D. 325—Confusion Followed. Some Claim Three Gods in One Person—Others Claim One God in Three Persons—All Say Incomprehensible Mystery—Constantine's Trinity Fiat Enforced by Cruel Persecutions. Back to the Bible and Away from Creeds Is the Message of the Hour Urged Upon All Lovers of Truth.

London. —Pastor Russell addressed the London Tabernacle congregation twice to-day. We report one of his discourses from the text, "To us there is one God, the Father, and one Lord Jesus Christ."—1 Corin.

thians 8:6. The Pastor declared that the confusion which has rent the Church of God into hundreds of sects has come through neglect of the Bible. The confusion is recognized by all Christian people everywhere, but the cause is not generally discerned. Church creeds are admitted to be defective, notwithstanding the truths which they all contain. Creed clashes are the direct result of the serious errors in all creeds.

Realizing this, why should not all Christians abandon and demolish their creeds? They purport to be pictures of the Almighty God, and His attitude toward men and His resultant plans. No heathen idol is so grotesque, so terrible, so horrible, as that which the most intelligent Christian people have portrayed with the pen. We are all ashamed of having misrepresented our Creator as worse in His purposes toward men than the vilest of humanity—as bad as we knew how to picture Satan himself and his attitude. Why linger longer? If Jehovah be God, let us worship Him. If the horrible Baal of the Dark Ages be no longer our God, let us destroy his creed images and endeavor to forget them.

Emperor Constantine's Nicene Creed. After the Christian Church had gotten that the Master declared that His Twelve Apostles would constitute the chief foundation stones of the New Jerusalem, they began to recognize their bishops as successors to the Twelve—apostolic bishops. They overlooked the fact that while God had prophetically told that the place of Judas would be filled by another, this particularity itself intimated that there would be no successors to the Twelve.

The real successor to Judas, Bible Students recognize in St. Paul. Through him God has given us the major portion of the New Testament, and special light upon the Church's path, which is to "shine more and more unto the perfect day." We now see that the eleven Apostles, before they had been confirmed in Apostleship by the Pentecostal blessing, erred in choosing Matthias, whom God merely ignored.

Under these circumstances the bishops rose gradually to power and influence as inspired oracles of God, and proportionately, the Twelve chosen as the Lord's mouthpieces to His Church lost their influence. It was easier to take the word of the bishops than to search the Scriptures at a time when copies of the Bible were very expensive, and only few were able to read.

Thus Bible study greatly declined during the second and third centuries, and disputes between Christians and Greek philosophers led some of the bishops to extremes. Not only did they maintain the Bible teaching that Jesus was the Son of God, and that He left His Heavenly condition and became a man that He might redeem Adam and his race; but, not content with this, some went further, and in their zeal claimed that He was the Heavenly Father Himself, who came down to earth and took man's nature and died, the just for the unjust. In their anxiety to overwhelm the Greek skeptics, these Christian teachers involved themselves in absurdities, without realizing it. Those making the most absurd claims appear to have had the greatest influence with the illiterate.

Gradually the trinitarian theory was advanced, and the mystification of saying that the Heavenly Father was His own Son, and that the Lord Jesus was His own Father, and that the Holy Spirit was another person and yet the same person, appealed to people who sought to reverence most those things which they do not understand. Thus to-day when questions are asked respecting the trinity—how one could be three, and how three could be one—the answer which is given, and which satisfies the ignorant, is, Mystery, Mystery! But the Bible makes no mystery of the matter. It never mentions trinity at all, nor anything that would give such a suggestion. The one text (1 John 5:7) which seems to give a color of support to the thought is now admitted by all scholars to be an interpolation dating from about the seventh century; for it is not found in manuscripts written at an earlier date. The Revised Version shows quite distinctly how the passage reads in the old manuscripts, and how the forgery to support the trinitarian theory was accomplished.

"To Us There Is One God." The Old Testament Scriptures represent the Divine Message of four thousand years, and say not a word respecting the trinity. On the contrary, they declare, "Hear, O Israel, Jehovah thy God is one God"; "Thou shalt have no other gods." To keep in line with this definite statement, the trinitarian theory claims that this one God has three persons, although others claim that there are three Gods but only one person. It seems impossible to get a trinitarian to decide what he really believes, he hedges with the word "Mystery."

The New Testament is as explicit as the Old in its statement that there is but one Supreme God. Jesus testified to this, declaring, "My Father is greater than I"—greater than all. (John 14:28.) Jesus declared that of Himself He could do nothing; that He was merely the Mouthpiece of God in His teachings, and the Finger of God in His workings of miracles. He directed that His followers should worship the Father, and declared, when leaving, "I ascend to My Father and to your Father, to My God and to your God."—John 20:17.

Our Lord did indeed declare the oneness, or harmony, between Himself and the Father, but He explained that this was because He ignored any will of His own, coming not to do His own will, but the will of the Father who sent Him. He exhorted His disciples similarly to have the same mind, the same will, the same spirit, which actuated Him—the Holy Spirit, the mind or disposition to do the will of the Father in Heaven. His prayer for His disciples was to the same effect, "That they all may be one"—even as Thou, Father, and I are—one in heart, mind, will, disposition, or holiness of spirit, harmony with God.—John 17:20, 21.

What could be more explicit than our text, "To us there is one God, the Father, of whom are all things," additionally, "To us there is one Lord (or Master), Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him?" The Apostle here not only shows the relationship between the Father and Son, but he ignores and thus disowns entirely the Holy Spirit as another God. Clearly and plainly enough he sets forth time and again that the Holy Spirit is the spirit, will, mind, power, disposition, etc., in fullest conformity to that of the Father. There is no mystery about the matter, none whatever.

"The Alpha and the Omega." Our Lord Jesus declared Himself to be the Alpha and the Omega of the Divine direct creation. (Revelation 1:8.) He was its Beginning and its End, according to John 1:1-5. Our Redeemer, known before He became a man as the Logos, was the Beginning of the Divine creation and the End of it in that, ever after the creation of the Logos, Jehovah operated in and through Him in respect to all the stupendous works of creation. His name, the Logos, indicates all this; it signifies the Divine Message, or Messenger, the One through whom Jehovah's utterances and decrees went forth.

So we read in the Greek, "In the beginning was the Logos, and the Logos was with the God, and the Logos was a god." The same was in the beginning with the God. By Him were all things made—that were made, and without Him was not one thing made. And the Logos was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory as the glory of the Only Begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

Constantine the Trinity-Maker. The Roman Emperor Constantine saw a vision—probably when wide awake—a vision of greater prosperity for himself and his Empire, by a recognition of Christianity as the religion of his Empire instead of paganism, which had previously been recognized. For that moment a certain portion of the Church of Christ had long labored. Abandoning the thought of the Second Coming of Jesus to establish His Kingdom, they desired marriage, or union, with earthly empire, thus to be set as a queen upon the throne of earthly dominion and honor.

Constantine's influence in Church affairs became great. He proposed the calling of a council of all the bishops, numbering about one thousand. He wanted to know why these apostolic bishops, all inspired with the same Spirit of God, taught so differently. He offered to pay the expenses of all the bishops to the Council at Nice; but the majority, fearing that the Emperor would be under the control of the Roman bishop (not yet claiming to be pope), declined to attend.

Only 384 came. But even they were unable to agree, the great point of dispute being the one we are discussing. Many held to the Bible teaching that Jehovah is the One Supreme God; that the Lord Jesus Christ was His Son and honored Agent in all His creative work; and that He, having manifested faith and loyalty to the Father to the extent of leaving the Heavenly glory, becoming a man and dying, the just for the unjust, had been exalted by the Father to His own right hand of majesty and power.

But the mystification thought of trinity had gained a hold on some of the bishops, amongst others the Bishop of Rome. The questions at issue were argued for months. With all his powerful influence, the Bishop of Rome could not bring the majority of the Council to acknowledge the doctrine of the trinity. Thereupon Constantine decided the matter; and the Nicene Creed, backed by the Emperor's authority and power, was declared to be the Christian faith, and anything contrary to it, heresy.

Yet be it remembered that only about one-third of the bishops were present at the Council; and that they could not be coerced into substituting mystery for the Word of God, until the Emperor lent his influence. His decree was that Christian doctrine as thus defined in the Nicene Creed should have the prestige of the support of the Emperor and of all his subordinate officers throughout the Roman Empire. All believing contrary to this creed would be heretics, and be considered in opposition to the Emperor, and such had the privilege of leaving the Empire. Thus was the mystery of trinity enshrined by a heathen emperor, not baptized—yet even sprinkled.

The history of the persecution of all who would not worship the trinitarian mystery would fill volumes. One and illustration is familiar to all—the burning of Servetus, by good Brother Calvin's signature to the death warrant. Is it any wonder that with such conditions prevailing for centuries, the Bible ignored and the creeds worshipped, the true teaching of the Bible on many subjects were completely lost sight of? Is it any wonder that when in the sixteenth century God began to bring the Bible back to the attention of the world, it was burned by the bishops in front of St. Paul's Cathedral in London? Is it any wonder that the Presbyterians of that time were persecuted for studying it, and could meet only in secret?

Is it any wonder that the men who began afresh to study the Bible, but who had their minds tintured with the creeds of centuries, were considerably handicapped? Is it any wonder if some of their conceptions of correct Bible interpretation were rude and crude? Have not our various Protestant denominations marked fresh endeavors to get nearer to the light?

Now as we are in the dawning of the New Dispensation, and God is lifting the veil of ignorance in general, is it any wonder that we can see the true teachings of the Bible more clearly than did our forefathers? Surely it is what we might expect, as well as what the Bible distinctly declares: "The mystery of God shall be finished," which He has kept secret from the foundation of the world.

The Difficulty at Present.

It seems sad, indeed, that now, in the dawning of the New Era, and its clearer light on the Bible as well as upon all things, so few Christian people should be prepared to profit by these clearer views. Only in our day is thorough Bible study possible for the majority in civilized lands; for only of late is there a sufficiency of education to admit of intelligent Bible study. What is the explanation of the failure to make use of all these blessings, favors, privileges and opportunities for Bible study? It is loss of faith; as Jesus said: "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find the faith on the earth?" It would appear that with more advantages than any previous generation, ours has less faith in God and less trust in the Bible as His Word. The cause of this can readily be traced, and it appals us! Our great institutions of learning, founded by our Bible-loving, God-fearing forefathers, have become worldly-wise. They have followed the course of learning to human understanding, against which we were forewarned by God—that the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God and will perish.

Following the guidance of so-called Higher Critics, the rank and file of professors of colleges have lost their faith, and at the present time, all over Christendom, are engaged in destroying the faith of the most intelligent young men and women of the world. Having lost faith in the Bible themselves, they think they are doing a real service in destroying the faith of others. Truly, they know not what they do; as the Bible declares, the wisdom of our wise men has perished; the understanding of the prudent men, the wealthy, etc., who govern these, is not apparent.—Isaiah 29:14.

With college graduates sneering at the Bible, and ignoring Divine worship, except in the sense of drawing nigh with their lips, is it any wonder that the spirit of this infidelity is gradually extending to the masses—the less educated? Is it any wonder that these who have nothing in particular to gain from religion except comfort and hope, bereft of these, care nothing for Bible study or for church attendance, except to hear the music or a brilliant address or to renew acquaintanceships?

Balm of Gilead the Remedy.

The only remedy which can hinder the world from rapidly rushing on toward socialism and anarchy, in utter disregard of God and His Divine arrangements, is a return to Bible study. Nor need the people be invited back to study the Bible along the lines of the creeds. Indeed, in order to attract attention to the Word of God, it is necessary that Christians should unite in smashing their creeds and in telling the people plainly that these creeds thoroughly misrepresent the Divine Character and the Divine Plan.

With other Bible Students, I make this my chief business in life. Having found the true Message of God's Word to be beautiful, heart-comforting and lead-satisfying, we are prepared to recommend it to others and to offer them a helping hand out of the mists, logs, misunderstandings, mistranslations and interpolations of the Dark Ages. Following the words of Jesus and the inspired Twelve, and the Prophets of old, we find that our God is a wholly different one from the horrible picture-God in the creeds of the Dark Ages. We rejoice in the true God, and in the true Saviour, and in the Spirit of Holiness, which comes to us as followers of Christ in proportion as we receive Him and His teachings into our hearts and lives.

Gall a Grievance.

A State ball has rarely been known to be looked upon in the light of a grievance, but this was the case with the ball their Majesties gave at Buckingham Palace at the end of last month. It is years since a ball was held so late as the end of July. The lady who does not wear a new and expensive dress at a function of the kind is decidedly "out of it," so that a ball means further expenditure on Court costumes at a time when society women are thinking of holidays on sea and moor and planning their outfits accordingly. There is an agitation afoot to secure the ending of the London season with June, and it is hoped there will be no State function a July next year.

Visitors Too Young.

The present-day craze for the higher education of children has roused the ire of Mr. Cecil Hallett, the official guide of the British Museum. "I take round parties daily," he says, "and think the education authorities send children who are much too young. It is rather difficult to explain prehistoric specimens to juveniles who are not tall enough to see the case unless they are held up. Then there seems to be no limit to age. It is disconcerting, to say the least of it, to try to lecture on prehistoric flints to a party which includes several babies in arms."

Bore All the Signs.

A minor, having a large piece of nipping plaster over the bridge of his nose went into a local public house. "Halloo!" breezily remarked the landlord, "going for your holidays, Jim?" "Holidays? What holidays?" "Well, I see you've got your trunk labelled," replied the landlord.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Margaret Wilson, eldest daughter of President Wilson, is enthusiastic over the work of the University of Wisconsin's bureau of social center development.

Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall, wife of Vice President Marshall, made forty-five calls in ninety minutes recently, scoring the social speed record for Washington.

Mrs. Strong, wife of the new governor of Alaska, is quite a cultivated woman, having studied music in Europe five years after her graduation from the schools of Seattle.

Sarah Bernhardt has already decided upon the new play in which she will appear in Paris in October or November. It is by Tristan Bernard and will give the actress a fantastic role. Its name has not yet been announced.

Mme. Melba has built for herself a delightful retreat at Lilydale, one of the most picturesque localities near her native Melbourne. She has hinted more than once that she would soon make it her permanent abode. She is keenly interested in the conservatorium of the University of Melbourne and has lectured to its students.

Electric Sparks.

A new telegraph cable is being laid from England to Hongkong, said to be the largest ever made.

Twelve billion horsepower—that is the combined electrical power output of the 7,500 central stations in the United States.

Rudolph Drabburg, a consulting electrical engineer of Brooklyn, says he has about solved the storage battery problem. He has invented a single cell six volt storage battery of from 100 ampere hours up to, he claims, is three times more powerful and two-thirds less in weight than any battery in existence.

Aerial Flights.

The international commission of scientific aeronautics will hold its next triennial meeting in 1915 in London.

The roof of the new German hangar is made in two sections, which are swung apart, permitting a dirigible balloon to rise directly from its anchorage.

Aeroplane manufacture in Germany is far from a flourishing condition financially. At present there are thirty-five aeroplane construction works, not counting amateur construction, but in nine out of ten cases the orders come from the government and go to only two or three leading firms.

Town Topics.

"A city in overalls," says a New Zealander visiting in Pittsburgh. Yep. The other kind have gone on to New York.—Washington Post.

A New York paper speaks of Brooklyn as a "baby carriage suburb" of Manhattan. Then the quibble of Brooklyn is a myth?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The mayor of Chicago is puzzled to decide what sort of new uniforms to select for his policemen. From all that we have heard of the Chicago force it might be well to equip some of them with the kind now being worn by a number of New York's ex-fines.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pert Personals.

Though Mrs. Catt was re-elected president of the international suffrage body, no one was rude enough to say that she came back—Chicago News.

When Miss Sylvia Pankhurst is in prison the officers can't get her to open her mouth, and when she is out of prison the officers can't get her to close it.—Kansas City Star.

Sarah Bernhardt says that she has retained her youthful appearance because she always did just as she pleased. Her chief pleasure seems to have been to come to the United States on farewell tours.—New Orleans Picayune.

Tributes to Mother.

A mother is a mother still—the holiest thing alive.—Coleridge.

All that I am or hope to be I owe to my angel mother.—A. Lincoln.

Make much of it while you have that most precious of all good gifts—a loving mother.—Macaulay.

A man never sees all that his mother has been to him till it's too late to let her know that he sees it.—W. D. Howells.

Women and Pockets.

Pistol pockets in skirts are the newest. Next we suppose there will be half pint pockets.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The promise of a return to pockets for women is sensible, especially when accompanied by the paradoxical speculation that they are called "pistol pockets," because the women will not carry pistols in them.—Exchange.

Science Siftings.

Apparatus by which gas lamps can be lighted and extinguished by wireless waves is a German invention.

Rush Post: Cards in Paris. In Paris you can buy for half a franc at any postoffice, a postal card which will hold 200 words of small writing and which will be delivered to any address in the city in about fifteen minutes, projected to its destination through a pneumatic tube.

Minuteness of Molecules.

If we try to count the number of molecules contained in one cubic millimeter of hydrogen gas, first arranging them in groups of a billion each, it would take a thousand years to count these groups. So writes M. Boli, a French physicist, in illustrating the powerlessness of figures.

Wide Apart in Horses.

The Argentine has as many horses as people, while Switzerland has only three horses to every hundred inhabitants.

Cork Paper.

Half a million dollars' worth of cork a year is used for very thin paper. This is supplied in sheets about four inches wide by six to ten long, and nearly all of it—about 100,000,000 sheets—is used in automatic machines for applying as tips to cigarettes.

Bark For Tanning.

Quebracho bark, one of the chief exports of the Argentine, will tan leather at least three times as fast as the bark of the oak or the hemlock. Nearly a million tons of the wood or the dry extract are sent to the United States and Europe annually. The growth of the tree is of the slowest, and it is estimated that a thousand years are required for it to reach maturity.

Fast Cycling.

An eminent doctor says that he has found a cyclist's pulse to beat as high as 250 times a minute immediately after making a fast mile. This illustrates the danger of "scorching."

Table Linen.

If you wish your table linen to look nice do not put it through the wringer, as it makes creases that will not come out even if the cloth be ironed when very damp. In fact, any clothes that you wish to look very nice when ironed will be better if they are wrung by hand.

Ice Lined Rivers.

Some of the rivers of Siberia flow over ice many years old and almost as solid as rock. A tributary of the Lena has a bed of pure ice over nine feet thick.

Vanilla Orchids.

The vanilla orchid is now grown commercially in the island of St. Vincent, West Indies, being introduced from the Seychelles. It grows there up to an altitude of 1,500 feet, with a yearly rainfall of 120 inches. The plants thrive best when planted on stems of the tree fern, Cyathea arborea.

Long Jumps.

The kangaroo readily jumps from sixty to seventy feet.

Heat and Cold and Ants.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chimneys in a blacksmith's forge.

Pigeons of St. Mark's.

Nothing is more amusing than to watch on a winter's day the marvelous intelligence with which the pigeons of St. Mark's, in Venice, can discriminate between residents and visitors in the Grand square of that city. The Piazza of St. Mark. The moment a foreigner shows his face in the piazza the pigeons set upon him in crowds, hoping to be fed. They do not trouble the natives, who may be sunning themselves by the hundred in the square.

Goats' Milk.

In Russian and German hospitals for children much use is made of goats' milk as being more nourishing than cows' milk and also free from the risk of spreading tuberculosis.

A Little Bird Told Me.

The words "a little bird told me" have their origin in Ecclesiastes 10:20, "Curse not the king—no, not in thy thought—and curse not the rich in thy bedchamber, for a bird of the air shall betray the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter."

Hides and Skins.

The United States is the world's greatest importer of hides and skins, notwithstanding the fact that it has a larger number of cattle than any other country except India, and it draws upon every part of the world for some of the numerous kinds of hides and skins which it requires. Cattle, horse, buffalo, sheep, goat, pig, kangaroo and even fish skins are included in the material of this character imported, and several other animals would be included in the list if the tanned skins imported were taken into consideration.

Frogs and Bacteria.

Frogs survive a pressure of 800 atmospheres, but at 400 atmospheres their muscles become disorganized. Bacteria are killed by a pressure of 4,000 atmospheres.

Persian Carpets.

The wool of which the Persian carpet is made is taken from the lustrous wool of a special breed of sheep or from the goat, which is dyed by means of certain plants and shrubs. It would be a criminal offense for persons to weave a carpet according to a European design, for a law has been made by the shah especially forbidding this.

On the Steamer. There is just as surely an etiquette for a steamer as for a drawing room, and for the benefit of readers who contemplate a trip on the water some of the formalities on board ship will be talked about.

After finding the location of your room and receiving the room key from the purser you should investigate your baggage, and if any be missing the cabin steward will direct you to the official to whom complaints can be made. It is wise to find out any little "landmarks" that will help you in locating your cabin, thus preventing mistakes and facilitating journeys to and from your room.

The next thing to do is to secure your seat at the dining table. You will be given a check, generally, which will place you in the dining room. This is given to the head steward on your first meal, and unless changed you should take the same seat at all subsequent meals.

Your deck chair is also important if you intend to profit by a rest each day. The deck steward for a stated fee will send you and mark your chair by a card with your name written on it. It is unpardonable to use another person's chair regularly, for nothing is so embarrassing to the rightful occupant as to find a chair filled and to be compelled to evict the man or woman who should have one of his own.

At table it is quite correct to speak to the ones seated near you. A "good evening" or "good morning" serves to break the ice. It is also permissible to speak to one's fellow passengers after the first day. It is very convenient to have some one introduce other men and women, but there is an informality on shipboard that bridges many gaps. Above all, do not overstep the bounds of good breeding. Do not bring on yourself the censure and adverse criticism of others.

Do not indulge in gossip, unkind criticism of others and be a nuisance by complaining against the accommodations and service. This type of traveler is never a favorite, and the punishment falls on his own head by the flight of others at his approach.

On the majority of lines it is not yet the accepted thing for a woman to go to the smoking room with a man to enjoy her after dinner coffee. The German steamers have shown a departure from this rule if the woman be married, in a party or with an older chaperon.

It is not obligatory to subscribe to the sea concert, but nearly every one does. Indeed, it is counted in with your "extra expenses" these days. If talented you should be a gracious contributor when asked.

Avoid Being Conspicuous at All Times.

The woman who resents a slight impertinence offered likely by some partially intoxicated youth, thereby giving her escort a bad half hour in his endeavor to punish the guilty, is not doing exactly the proper thing unless indeed the impertinence has been too pronounced to be overlooked. Better try the method of neither seeing nor hearing. The boy or man is made to understand that the offense cannot be repeated, and very likely no one else has known anything about it.

As an almost infallible rule no woman gets herself insulted unless she gives cause either by dress, manner or carriage. Men are very careful in such matters. If women are careful not to talk or laugh too loud, never to drink liquors in public restaurants or cafes, never by any chance to give a side glance or in any way indicate that they wish to be noticed, they may go from one extremity of the earth to the other in perfect safety unless unfortunate enough to find themselves in the company of intoxicated and brutal men. Even then, should there be any present, properly reared, with good mothers, sisters, sweethearts, to remember, any lack of civility will surely be punished and short shrift given. But if a girl or woman makes loud remarks, casts about her for looks of admiration, tells of experiences in crowds, and so on, she is to be blamed should she be insulted by the boldly expressed opinions of men watching her. This is, indeed, the truest test of high breeding and good training to be shown.

The Groom's Wedding Expense.

The groom has a few expenses to meet. He should fee the clergyman for officiating. The best man usually attends to this, and the fee should not be less than $5. In fashionable society $25 is considered the minimum fee.

The groom should also fee the sexton of the church. He pays for the bride's bouquet, the bouquets of the bridesmaids and the boutonnières of the ushers. He sends carriages for the ushers and provides a carriage for himself and the best man. He also pays for a carriage for himself and wife after the ceremony. If the best man and groom have come from another city the groom is entitled to play the host and to pay for the expenses of both. This is not obligatory and is generally not permitted by the best man.

Of course the little souvenirs given at the farewell dinners of both bride and groom are paid for by each respectively. These are sent the day before the wedding by messengers if no special entertainment is given.

It has frequently been stated by the press and otherwise that Queenstown is a fine country, and so it is. But it certainly takes a good country if the farmers are to make expenses hauling out the crops. If we only raised four bus. of No. 5 wheat to the acre, as did some of the farmers to the east of us this year, Queenstown would have been depopulated long ago. As it is, we are worrying along doing the best we can—bearing with the neglect of the government and hoping for better days. Last fall when the Hon. Minister of Public Works and member from our district without opposition were putting in overtime telling the farmers of Queenstown about all the good things the government was doing and going to do if the minister kept his seat, that gentleman had to pass part of one night in his auto on the south side of the river, as the ferryman had gone to bed. We only wish this had happened near Christmas, or right before the freeze-up, so that the Hon. Minister would have had a taste of what the Queenstown farmers have to put up with. A new bridge is under construction at Boozano; cheer up you fellows who live 30 to 50 miles from Boozano. This bridge might benefit a few Indians who are the only settlers down that way.

Some time in the future, when the history of early pioneering in Queenstown shall be written, there shall be a few heroes worth mentioning, and Ole Nelson will be one of them. On that memorable day when the old antiquated means of transportation called a ferry, went down in the river with a traction engine on top, Ole Nelson returned from Gleichen with a load of plums, peaches and other perishable stuff. After waiting half a day and seeing that no effort whatever was being made either by the government or anyone else to get the ferry back in working order, Ole decided to take desperate chances to get across and home with the fruit before it was spoiled. So he loaded the fruit into a row boat and started to ford the stream with his team and a democrat. He loaded down the democrat with rocks and stood up on top of the seat, but the water was so deep that it came up to his knees and about all that could be seen of the team was their ears. Several times the democrat was nearly upset by the current, and had it not been for the rocks in the box that acted as ballast, Ole and his team would likely have been drowned.

HELPS FARM PRODUCE

The strides that Ontario has made in the automobile industry in the past eight years were remarkably in evidence at the Motor Show recently held in Toronto. When the first auto show was held in 1905 there was scarcely a town outside of Toronto that had an automobile industry of any sort, either for the manufacture of cars or accessories. Now, in the eighth year, there are large manufacturing plants in Brantford, Orillia, Brockville, Oshawa, Windsor, St. Catharines, Berlin, Amherstburg, Petrolia, London, Ottawa, Bowmanville, Ingersoll, Quilph, Galt, Walkerville and Kingston. Every one of these industrial centres provides a healthy market for the farm produce of the contiguous country.

Musings of a Country Merchant

The following was taken from an exchange and portrays conditions in some localities. Of course, it could not be a local experience.

"Yes," remarked the country merchant, "I certainly have a snap. Wholesale houses send duns every month and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a farmer he becomes swearing mad and quits trading at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who are owing me are sending money in advance to order houses. If I contribute money for any cause people say I am bidding for trade. If I don't they say I am a hog. Every day I am expected to dig up for every thing that comes along, from a raffle ticket to a church fund by people who claim I ought to be because they do part of their trading here, but our friends Simpson and Eaton neither buy tickets nor help church funds, and yet get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants I must treat the family with candy and cigars. If I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay hang on to their money while I pay 10 per cent at the bank to get ready cash. I have big business during hard times and poor crops, from those who are willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue houses' prices and wait until harvest for money. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft soapy hypocrite, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snap." And he looks over $10,000 worth of accounts, all good, and wonders how he can raise $350 to pay a draft due tomorrow.

Peter McLean took his position as secretary-treasurer of the Gleichen town Council on Saturday, vice J. T. Johnston, who is leaving shortly for England.
